

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

THE CLASSICAL JOURNAL

VOLUME XVII

FEBRUARY, 1922

NUMBER 5

Editorial

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF MEMBERS AND SUBSCRIBERS

The following statement of members by states recently sent in to us is encouraging. It shows that a vigorous campaign has been carried on, at least in many states, for membership increase. And yet we know that there is still altogether too large a number of Latin teachers who are "playing a lone hand," out of touch with both the personnel and the literature of their profession. It is estimated that there are 10,000 Latin teachers in the United States, less than half of whom are included in the combined membership of the four great classical associations of the country.

There is still abundant and urgent opportunity for missionary work, not alone by executive committees and state vice presidents, but by us all.

|           | MembersMar. 20, 1921 | MembersDec. 8, 1921 | SubscribersDec. 8, 1921 | TotalDec. 8, 1921 |
|-----------|--------------------------|-------------------------|-----------------------------|-----------------------|
| Alabama   | 24                       | 27                      | 3                           | 30                    |
| Arkansas  | 23                       | 32                      | 2                           | 34                    |
| Colorado  | 39                       | 43                      | 12                          | 55                    |
| Florida   | 21                       | 16                      | 6                           | 22                    |
| Georgia   | 35                       | 43                      | 3                           | 36                    |
| Illinois  |                          | 310                     | 36                          | 346                   |
| Indiana   | 133                      | 198                     | 32                          | 230                   |
| Iowa      | 121                      | 156                     | 14                          | 170                   |
| Kansas    | 99                       | 122                     | 15                          | 137                   |
| Kentucky  | 50                       | 51                      | 14                          | 65                    |
| Louisiana |                          | 27                      | 1 3                         | 30                    |

|                |               | l            | 1                   |              |
|----------------|---------------|--------------|---------------------|--------------|
|                | Members       | Members      | Subscrib ers | Total        |
|                | Mar. 20, 1921 | Dec. 8, 1921 | Dec. 8, 1921        | Dec. 8, 1921 |
| Michigan       | 144           | 123          | 38                  | 161          |
| Minnesota      | 61            | 64           | 10                  | 74           |
| Mississippi    | 47            | 55           | 4                   | 59           |
| Missouri       |               | 105          | 18                  | 123          |
| Nebraska       | 44            | 56           | 12                  | 68           |
| New Mexico     | 5             | 4            | 1                   | 5            |
| North Carolina | 29            | 39           | 7                   | 46           |
| North Dakota   | 19            | 17           | 3                   | 20           |
| Ohio           | 288           | 295          | 40                  | 335          |
| Oklahoma       | 32            | 29           | 12                  | 41           |
| South Carolina | 24            | 28           | 4                   | 32           |
| South Dakota   | 21            | 21           | 5                   | 26           |
| Tennessee      | 57            | 79           | 6                   | 85           |
| Texas          | 121           | 128          | 29                  | 157          |
| Utah           | 9             | 8            | 0                   | 8            |
| Virginia       | 70            | 52           | 11                  | 63           |
| West Virginia  | 19            | 23           | 2                   | 25           |
| Wisconsin      |               | 98           | 17                  | 115          |
| Wyoming        | 5             | 10           | 3                   | 13           |
| · ·            |               |              | l                   |              |
|                | 1999          | 2259         | 362                 | 2621         |

THE NEXT ANNUAL MEETING

As has been advertised for some months past on the fourth cover page of the Journal, the next annual meeting of the Association will be held with the University of Wisconsin at Madison, April 13-15. The program of this meeting will be published editorially in the next (March) number. We urge all who can possibly attend this meeting to begin now to make their arrangements to do so. We hope especially that our members of the northwest section who have hitherto found themselves too far away from the annual meeting to attend will take advantage of this favorable opportunity to experience the undoubted inspiration which a personal attendance at an annual meeting gives. One may read the papers as they appear later from time to time in the Journal; but nothing can take the place of the personal touch and the chance to form and renew friendships which the annual meeting gives. Let us make the Madison meeting a record breaker for attendance. On to Wisconsin!